Overview

Djúpivogur is a small fishing village on the east coast, on a quiet fjord below the mountain Búlandstindur. It is a calm stop on the Ring Road, with an old harbour and a relaxed feel.

The village is part of the international Cittaslow network, which promotes a slow and local way of life.

When to visit

Summer has the longest days and the most open cafés and services. Many places close in winter. The east coast gets fog, so allow extra time.
